Primary Use/Purpose: This section describes what this instrument was designed to measure.

The Trauma Informed Practice (TIP) Scales is a 33-item scale that measures the degree to which domestic violence (DV) programs are using trauma-informed practices from survivors' perspectives. The TIP Scales includes six subscales: environment of agency and mutual respect, access to information on trauma, opportunities for connection, emphasis on strengths, cultural responsiveness/inclusivity, and support for parenting. Participants respond to each item using a four-point Likert scale (from “not at all true” to “very true” or “don't know”). Scores of each subscale are summed and averaged to produce subscale scores.
Background and Development: How and why this instrument was developed.

Spurred by research demonstrating the pervasiveness and impact of trauma, domestic violence programs are increasingly adopting a trauma-informed approach. In the absence of measurement tools, however, they are unable to determine whether indeed clients experience their practices as trauma-informed. The TIP Scales were developed to fill this gap by measuring the degree to which DV programs are using trauma informed practices (TIP) from survivors’ perspectives.

Psychometrics (if applicable): Any testing of this instrument.

A psychometric evaluation of the TIP Scales demonstrates their reliability and validity.

How the TIP Can Support Your Work

Many human service and advocacy-based organizations are committed to providing trauma-informed practices (TIP) to people using their services, and domestic violence (DV) programs are no exception. Some DV programs have a long history of using a trauma-informed lens in their work, while others are newer to the concept.

Regardless of where on the continuum of TIP such organizations lie, until now none has had a tool for examining, from the survivor’s perspective, the extent to which they are truly engaging in the type of practice to which they aspire.

The TIP was created to be used easily by community programs so that they can:

- Identify their areas of strength and weakness.
- Improve their practices.
-  Demonstrate to funders and other key stakeholders that they are incorporating trauma-informed principles into their work.
The Process of Creating the TIP Scales

The TIP Scales were created through a university-community collaboration that included national experts on TIP in a DV context, as well as survivors and front-line advocates. Briefly, we:

1. developed items for the initial measure based on an extensive literature review, interviews with TIP experts, and focus groups with survivors and advocates;

2. administered the draft measure in the context of a survey of 370 survivors seeking support from DV programs; and

3. evaluated the factor structure, reliability, and validity of the TIP scales.

The final TIP Scales that emerged from the exploratory factor analyses correspond remarkably well with existing literature on trauma-informed practice in the DV context. They assess the following six domains of trauma informed practice:

- Environment of Agency and Mutual Respect
- Access to Information on Trauma
- Opportunities for Connection
- Emphasis on Strengths
- Cultural Responsiveness and Inclusivity
- Support for Parenting

The subscales and what they measure are described next.

---

Agency subscale scores indicate the extent to which survivors feel that the program and its staff respect their agency and autonomy by offering opportunities for choice and control.

Information subscale scores reflect the extent to which survivors feel that staff offer information that increases their understanding of trauma and coping skills.

Connection subscale scores indicate the extent to which survivors perceive their program as one that creates opportunities for developing and strengthening mutually supportive relationships.

Strengths subscale scores reflect the extent to which survivors perceive that staff recognize and value the unique strengths they bring from their family, culture, relationships, and life experiences.

Inclusivity subscale scores reflect the extent to which survivors regard staff as understanding of and responsive to various aspects of their identity, including culture, religion, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, and immigration status.

Parenting subscale scores reflect the degree to which survivors feel the program helps them strengthen their relationships with their children through support and education.

The TIP Scales assess the following six domains of trauma informed practice:

- Environment of Agency & Mutual Respect
- Access to Information on Trauma
- Opportunities for Connection
- Emphasis on Strengths
- Cultural Responsiveness & Inclusivity
- Support for Parenting

The English version of the TIP can be found in its entirety in Appendix A. The key to identifying the 6 subscales within the TIP follows immediately in Appendix B. The Spanish version of the TIP is in Appendix C.
Tips for Using the TIP

This brief guide was created to give you some helpful tips for collecting and analyzing the TIP. This section covers the basics regarding:

- When and how often you want to use the TIP.
- Deciding how many clients you may want to hear from.
- Having a protocol in place with staff so everyone knows when and how to ask clients to complete the TIP.
- Analyzing and using the findings.

When and How Often to Use the TIP?

You do not need to use the TIP surveys all year long, nor with every client being served by your agency. Instead, consider using the TIP for a particular period of time – long enough to hear from enough clients that you feel comfortable you have enough information on which to judge how well you are doing, but short enough that the process isn’t overly cumbersome for staff or the survivors with whom you are working.

You might decide to use the TIP for two months, for example, inviting every client who uses your services during that time to complete the survey. If that timeframe is long enough to get enough surveys back (say, at least 40), that may be enough. You can always decide to collect more surveys if you think it would be helpful.

Once you have enough surveys, use the suggestions in the section of this guide called “Creating TIP Scores” to analyze the results and decide how to use them. The results should tell you;

1) what is going especially well in your organization, &

2) where there is room for improvement.

After meeting with the staff to discuss the findings, you might implement a number of changes within your organization. Allow enough time for the changes to become routine (perhaps 6-12 months?), and then survey clients again with the TIP in order to see if services have improved in the way you were hoping.
Designing a Protocol for Getting Completed TIPS Back from Clients

Once you have decided on a time frame for collecting surveys (say, for simplicity’s sake, that you have decided to collect surveys for two months), it is important that all program staff feel like they are a part of the process and understand how the surveys can help them understand their work.

In short, if you want program staff to care about collecting and using this information, it is important to involve them in deciding who will collect the data, when, from whom, and how often.

Different programs will make different decisions about this based on the size of your organization, number of staff, types of services offered, etc., but we offer a number of guidelines here to help you make the best choices possible.

First, regardless of the service offered, survivors should be confident that program staff cannot trace their comments directly back to them.

Some clients will not want to give negative feedback to the person who just provided them with services, either because they do not want to hurt the staff member’s feelings or because they might think staff will hold their comments against them.

Therefore, some time and effort needs to go into reassuring clients that steps have been taken to ensure their comments are completely anonymous. Tips for doing this can be found on the next page, which can be copied and distributed to program staff.

Any staff member who will be involved in collecting surveys from survivors should be familiar with the protocol guide presented on the next page. Feel free to copy and distribute it!

If you want program staff to care about collecting and using this information, it is important to involve them in deciding who will collect the data, when, from whom, and how often.
CREATING A PLAN WITH STAFF FOR COLLECTING TIP DATA

1. Meet with key staff to explain the need for the evaluation and how it can be useful.
2. Decide with staff who will collect the data, how often, and from whom (more information about sampling below).
3. Copy enough blank forms so that they are readily available to staff; they should be in a visible area that will remind staff to use them.
   - Do not collect data when clients are in crisis.
4. Design the process in a way that clients can return completed forms anonymously. You can make or buy a locked box with a hole in the top, or provide envelopes that clients can seal themselves and place in a safe place. Consider:
   - Clients need to feel that no one will look at their form in the near future.
   - Clients need to feel that they will not be identified by their survey.
   - Before you begin, you could ask some clients what place or approach would feel best to them.
   - You might need to figure this out through trial and error.
5. Decide with staff how often to discuss how the data collection is going; this should be quite often in the beginning while staff are getting used to the new procedures.
6. All staff who might invite clients to participate in completing a survey should have a copy of the “Directions for inviting clients to participate in program evaluation,” described next.

Important Sampling Notes & Considerations

Collect data often enough that you don’t miss those clients who receive short-term services, BUT not so often that it’s a burden to clients.

The key to sampling is that you must make sure that the people you include are as much like (“representative of”) the whole group of people who receive your services as possible. This includes: Clients from all ages, races and cultural groups, sexual orientations, religious preferences, and abilities must be included. Dissatisfied as well as satisfied clients need to be included.

<td>Ideally, try to ask every shelter resident to participate as they get closer to shelter exit (other than those in crisis).</td>

<tr>
<td>Support group participants</td>
<td>Ideally, at the end of a meeting, invite them to stay an extra 5 minutes to complete the form if they have participated in at least 3 meetings. Pens or pencils should be provided, as well as a locked box or envelope they can seal, and the facilitator should leave the room.</td>

DIRECTIONS FOR INVITING CLIENTS TO PARTICIPATE IN PROGRAM EVALUATION

The staff member who asks the client to complete the TIP survey or any other evaluation surveys should ideally not be the person who has just delivered the service (the advocate, group facilitator, counselor, etc.). For small programs where this is not possible, be sure to follow these guidelines even more carefully, and NEVER take a completed form directly from a client. Clients can put the completed survey into a locked box, sealed envelope, etc.

Stress the following things to the client when you ask them to complete a survey:

- You understand s/he is busy and you appreciate their taking the time to complete a survey.
- The survey will only take a few minutes to complete.
- Explain that your program takes survey results seriously and makes changes to services based on feedback received.
- While you would appreciate their feedback, completing the survey is completely voluntary.
- Explain that it’s very important staff do not know who completed what survey and that a number of procedures are in place to make sure staff don’t know who said what. For example:
  - Show the client where to put the completed survey. Either provide a locked box or a sealed envelope or direct the client to another staff person who collects the surveys.
  - Mention that surveys are only checked once a month (or once a quarter for even smaller programs) so that staff have no idea who completed them.
  - Mention this is also why you’ve provided a pencil or black or blue pen.
- Ask if the client has any questions or concerns.

For clients that agree to take the survey:

Make sure clients receive either a pencil, or black or blue pen to complete the survey.
Provide a private and quiet place for the client to complete the survey.

Some clients will tell you that they WANT you to know what they said. When this happens, thank them but remind them that you want them to give both positive feedback as well as ideas for how things could be improved and that you’d rather they do the survey in confidence.
Developing frequency scores

While you could do some more advanced statistical analyses to understand the TIP data (if you have a data geek handy!), you can learn a lot from simple frequencies. Frequencies tell you how many of something you have. They are sometimes called “counts,” and are often shown as percentages. Frequencies can be invaluable, even if they are simple.

Example

For the TIP, clients are asked to choose whether a statement is:

Not at all true | A little true | Somewhat true | Very true

Item 1 reads: Staff respect my privacy.

Let’s assume that 50 clients completed the survey, and their answers look like this:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Response Option</th>
<th>Number of Clients Who Chose This Option</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Not at all true</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A little true</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Somewhat true</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Very true</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

You may decide to present this information as percentages, such as: “Of 50 clients, 86% said it was somewhat or very true that staff respected their privacy.” You could also present the information in table form. In this next table, n stands for number of participants:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Response Option</th>
<th>Percent Endorsed</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Not at all true</td>
<td>4% (n=2)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A little true</td>
<td>10% (n=5)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Somewhat true</td>
<td>40% (n=20)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Very true</td>
<td>46% (n=23)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
You can gain some helpful information just by examining each item individually on the entire TIP, but if you have the time and resources we recommend you examine the data by subscales. Just a reminder, there are 6 subscales:

- Environment of Agency and Mutual Respect (Agency; 9 items)
- Access to Information on Trauma (Information; 5 items)
- Opportunities for Connection (Connection; 3 items)
- Emphasis on Strengths (Strengths; 3 items)
- Cultural Responsiveness and Inclusivity (Inclusivity; 8 items)
- Support for Parenting (Parenting; 5 items)

The reason we suggest you look at items within the scales is that it would give you valuable information about whether your staff is excelling in a particular area but has room for improvement in another.

For example, what might you think of the following results?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Survey item</th>
<th>Not at all true</th>
<th>A little true</th>
<th>Somewhat true</th>
<th>Very true</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Opportunities for Connection subscale (3 items)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In this program, I have the opportunity to connect with others.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2%</td>
<td>8%</td>
<td>90%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have opportunities to help other survivors of abuse in this program.</td>
<td>1%</td>
<td>3%</td>
<td>12%</td>
<td>84%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have the option to get support from peers or others who have had experiences similar to my own.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>3%</td>
<td>7%</td>
<td>90%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Emphasis on Strengths Subscale (3 items)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Staff respect the strengths I have gained through my life experiences.</td>
<td>23%</td>
<td>12%</td>
<td>50%</td>
<td>15%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Staff respect the strengths I get from my culture or family ties.</td>
<td>26%</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>46%</td>
<td>10%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The strengths I bring to my relationships with my children, my family, or others are recognized in this program.</td>
<td>18%</td>
<td>19%</td>
<td>45%</td>
<td>18%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The responses in this table might indicate to you that you are doing a great job providing survivors with opportunities for connection, but that your staff may not be focusing on or respecting clients’ strengths. You might implement some specific changes in your staff training and supervision to rectify this problem, and then will want to collect more survey data after enough time has passed for change to occur. Ideally, you would see much more positive answers to these items after changes in practice were made!

Developing mean (or average) scores

In addition to looking at frequencies, or the percentage of answers in each category, you might want to look at the "average response" across each of the TIP’s six subscales. The mean response is the mathematical average of the responses. This would be too cumbersome to do by hand but is a very simple keystroke in any database such as Microsoft Excel. The reason we have assigned a number to each response category (not at all true = 0, very true = 3) is so that you can calculate scale means if you desire. The reason to do this is to see if the subscale mean improves over time, or to see if some subscales have higher means than others (indicating where your program is stronger or weaker).

Example

Using the same responses in the earlier example, and assuming 100 respondents, you would have the following calculations:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Survey item</th>
<th>Not at all true (0)</th>
<th>A little true (1)</th>
<th>Somewhat true (2)</th>
<th>Very true (3)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Opportunities for Connection subscale (3 items)

In this program, I have the opportunity to connect with others.
I have opportunities to help other survivors of abuse in this program.
I have the option to get support from peers or others who have had experiences similar to my own.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>0 x 0</th>
<th>2 x 1</th>
<th>8 x 2</th>
<th>90 x 3</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Emphasis on Strengths Subscale (3 items)

Staff respect the strengths I have gained through my life experiences.
Staff respect the strengths I get from my culture or family ties.
The strengths I bring to my relationships with my children, my family, or others are recognized in this program.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>23 x 0</th>
<th>12 x 1</th>
<th>50 x 2</th>
<th>15 x 3</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>26 x 0</th>
<th>20 x 1</th>
<th>46 x 2</th>
<th>10 x 3</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>18 x 0</th>
<th>19 x 1</th>
<th>45 x 2</th>
<th>18 x 3</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
If you multiply each of these items accordingly, then divide by 100 (the number of respondents), you will get a mean score for each item:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Survey item</th>
<th>Item Mean</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Opportunities for Connection</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In this program, I have the opportunity to connect with others.</td>
<td>2.88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have opportunities to help other survivors of abuse in this program.</td>
<td>2.79</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have the option to get support from peers or others who have had experiences similar to my own.</td>
<td>2.87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Emphasis on Strengths</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Staff respect the strengths I have gained through my life experiences.</td>
<td>1.57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Staff respect the strengths I get from my culture or family ties.</td>
<td>1.42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The strengths I bring to my relationships with my children, my family, or others are recognized in this program.</td>
<td>1.63</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

To calculate the subscale mean from the item means, you simply add the item means together and divide by the number of items in the subscale. So for the Connection subscale, you would add 2.88 + 2.79 + 2.87 and then divide by 3.

The subscale means, then, are:

- Opportunities for Connection: 2.85
- Emphasis on Strengths: 1.54

One way to describe this would be: “On a scale of 0-3, with 0 being Not at All True and 3 being Very True, the mean of the Opportunities for Connection subscale was quite positive, at 2.85. The average score on the Emphasis on Strengths subscale, however, was only 1.54 (midway between A Little True and Somewhat True), suggesting a need for improvement.”

Dealing with “I Don’t Know” Responses

One of the TIP subscales – Cultural Responsiveness and Inclusivity – includes survey items with “I don’t know” response options. These were provided because it is possible that some clients will not know an answer to a particular survey item and where this is true we do not want them to guess.
For example, Cultural Responsiveness and Inclusivity item #5 reads: Staff understand the challenges faced by people who are immigrants.

It is possible that some program clients will simply be unaware whether or not this is true. In these cases they can choose the “I don’t know” response.

It is important to think about how best to handle frequency calculations when you have an “I don’t know” category.

Example

If your raw numbers from 100 respondents look like this:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Not at all true</th>
<th>A little true</th>
<th>Somewhat true</th>
<th>Very true</th>
<th>I don’t know</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>0%</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Staff understand the challenges faced by people who are immigrants.

It would be inaccurate (and paint your program in a more negative light) to report that only 65% of your clients reported “very true” to this survey item. It would be more accurate to remove the “I don’t know” responses before calculating percentages of you ‘valid’ responses.

When you report your frequencies (percentages), then, it would be more accurate to say:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Not at all true</th>
<th>A little true</th>
<th>Somewhat true</th>
<th>Very true</th>
<th>I don’t know</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>0</td>
<td>2%</td>
<td>11%</td>
<td>87%</td>
<td>25%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Staff understand the challenges faced by people who are immigrants.

You could present this as: “25% of the clients were unable to answer this question. Of the 75 clients who did have an opinion, 87% reported that it was ‘very true’ that staff understand the challenges faced by people who are immigrants.”
Parting Words

We hope this brief guide is helpful to you in documenting and understanding your efforts to promote health and healing for survivors. We see this guide as a “living document” that will change over time as we hear from you about what is helpful and what else is needed. Please do not hesitate to contact either of us with your thoughts, questions, and experiences so that we can make this guide as useful as possible over time. And thank you for all that you do for survivors and their children!

The Trauma Informed Practices (TIP) Scales

(English version)
How Do You Feel About This Program?

We would like to ask you some questions about how it feels to participate in this program. We are especially interested in the extent to which staff at this program recognize your challenges and difficulties, as well as your strengths and coping strategies.

Please let us know how true the following statements are as you think about your interactions with staff in this program on a scale from 0 to 3. You may feel different ways about different staff members. Please respond with your overall impression of the staff. This picture will help you think about that:

1. I am learning more about how children react emotionally when they have witnessed or experienced abuse, and other hardships.

2. Staff help me explore how children’s relationships can be affected by witnessing or experiencing abuse, and other life difficulties.

3. I am learning more about how my own experience of abuse can influence my relationships with my children.

4. The program provides opportunities for children to get help dealing with the abuse and other hardships they may have experienced or been affected by.

5. Staff support me to strengthen my relationships with my children.
APPENDIX B

Key to TIP Scales
Appendix B: Key to the TIP Scales

The full 33-item TIP contains 6 subscales. The survey is divided into three sections (sections A, B, and C) for two reasons. First, the three sections have slightly different response options, with Sections B and C including an “I don’t know” response. Second, Section C should only be asked of parents with minor children being served by the program. Others will leave that section of the survey blank.

We have provided the subscales here in two different ways; use whichever is easiest for you to identify which survey items capture which type of trauma-informed practice.

Section A. 4 subscales, 20 items total
- Environment of Agency and Mutual Respect (Agency; 9 items)
- Access to Information on Trauma (Information; 5 items)
- Opportunities for Connection (Connection; 3 items)
- Emphasis on Strengths (Strengths; 3 items)

Organized by the order on the survey
- 1. Staff respect my privacy.
- 2. Staff are supportive when I’m feeling stressed out or overwhelmed.
- 3. I decide what I want to work on in this program.
- 4. I have the opportunity to learn how abuse and other difficulties affect responses in the body.
- 5. I have the opportunity to learn how abuse and other difficulties affect peoples’ mental health.
- 6. Staff treat me with dignity.
- 7. Staff respect the strengths I have gained through my life experiences.
- 8. Staff respect the strengths I get from my culture or family ties.
- 9. Staff understand that I know what’s best for me.
- 10. In this program, I have the opportunity to connect with others.
- 11. I have opportunities to help other survivors of abuse in this program.
- 12. This program creates opportunities for me to learn how abuse and other hardships affect peoples’ relationships.
- 13. The strengths I bring to my relationships with my children, my family, or others are recognized in this program.
- 14. Staff respect the choices that I make.
- 15. In this program, I can share things about my life on my own terms and at my own pace.
- 16. This program gives me opportunities to learn how abuse, and other difficulties affect peoples’ ability to think clearly and remember things.
- 17. I have the option to get support from peers or others who have had experiences similar to my own.
- 18. Staff can handle difficult situations.
- 19. I am learning more about how to handle unexpected reminders of the abuse and difficulties I have endured.
- 20. I can trust staff.
