Evaluating Teen Dating Violence: Baltimore

Author(s) of Instrument:
Megan H. Bair-Merritt
Pamela A. Matson

Key References: Publications related to this instrument.
N/A. In progress.

Primary Use/Purpose: This section describes what this instrument was designed to measure.

Our study sought to explore young women's daily reports of teen dating violence. We, therefore, adapted a validated measure such that it could be administered by a link on one's Smart Phone (i.e., the measure needed to be brief with clear responses; ours as can be seen below, was 6 items).

Background and Development: How and why this instrument was developed.

We based questions from Dr. Foshee's Safe Dates;¹ ² our goal was to use the most validated questions possible, but questions must be brief to be able to answer as part of a daily survey administered via a link on one’s Smart Phone.

Psychometrics (if applicable): Any testing of this instrument.

N/A.

Link to Instrument: Link to the instrument if available.

See attached.

Submitted by: Megan Blair-Merritt submitted this instrument to the CVR Instruments Collection and certified permission to publicly share this instrument.
Evaluating Teen Dating Violence in Baltimore

Questions are based on Foshee’s Safe Dates questions. Participants answer questions on a daily basis on their smartphones.

1. Has he called you fat, ugly, stupid or some other insult since this time yesterday? Y/N

2. Has he threatened to hit, punch, kick or hurt you since this time yesterday? Y/N

3. Has he pushed, shoved, grabbed, slapped, hit or kicked you since this time yesterday? Y/N

4. Have you called him fat, ugly, stupid or some other insult since this time yesterday? Y/N

5. Have you threatened to hit, punch, kick or hurt him since this time yesterday? Y/N

6. Have you pushed, shoved, grabbed, slapped, hit or kicked him since this time yesterday? Y/N