Primary Use/Purpose: This section describes what this instrument was designed to measure.

This study was designed to identify predictors of criminal victimization based on lifestyles and routine activities theory to make recommendations for policy and improving public safety.
Participants were asked about their victimization experiences for violent and property crime, whether they reported the crime to the police, their relationship with the offender and other characteristics of the offense.

The original Chinese language version of this instrument is included and can be found beginning on page 18.

Background and Development: How and why this instrument was developed.

The study had two primary aims. The first was to test whether a Western multi-level analytic framework could be applied to China. The second was to determine predictors of burglary in China. The level one household level variables were measures of target attractiveness and presence or lack of guardianship. The level two, community variables, were measures of collective efficacy and public control.

Psychometrics (if applicable): Any testing of this instrument.

This study used measures that had previous been validated in the West.

Lifestyles, Neighborhoods, and Resident Safety

Dear Tianjin Resident:

Greetings. We are conducting a study of the relationship between lifestyles, neighborhood characteristics, and personal safety among residents of the city of Tianjin. The study is important for policy-making about public safety and the protection of residents. This questionnaire is designed to collect data for the study.

We want to assure you once again that your participation in the survey is completely voluntary. You may decline to participate, and you may choose not to answer any questions that you would prefer not to answer. We do not anticipate that there would be any significant risks for you to participate. The answers that you provide will be treated confidentially and will not be used for any purposes other than those of the research. Once you have completed the questionnaire, please put it in the accompanying unmarked envelope and seal the envelope.

We recognize that filling out the questionnaire will take some time, and we hope that you will give us your full cooperation in completing the survey. Your opinions and views are extremely valuable to our study. If you have any questions about the research or your participation, please contact Director Zhou Lu at the Tianjin Academy of Social Sciences (2369-0983).

We thank you for your willingness to participate in this important survey.
